PROVISIONS MAY REACH MEXICO CITY

As Result of Factories Yielding to Pressure Brought By United States

NOTE SENT TO LEADERS OF VARIOUS FACTIONS

PEOPLE ACTUALLY STARVE

And It Was Urged That Railroad Communication Be Kept Open to Allow Trains Bearing Food to Have Right of Way Over All Others—Latest Mexican Developments.

(Associated Press Telegram)
Washington, July 30.—Responses from the Mexican military factions to urgent representations by the United States government that they allow food supplies to reach the starving people of Mexico City were today awaited by officials here.

Notes addressed to General Carranza, Villa and Zapata, demanding that the railroad line from Vera Cruz to Mexico City, be kept open, for the transportation of food supplies, were sent. The faction leaders are in control of the road. The demand was made upon humanitarian grounds.

The dispatch of the notes followed the receipt by Secretary Lansing of a communication from the American Red Cross sent by Charles J. O'Connor, in charge of the Red Cross relief work in Mexico City. He pictured conditions in the Mexican capital as more chaotic than ever. People are actually dying of starvation, despite the fact that they have the money with which to buy food.

The notes were sent last night to American representatives at Vera Cruz, Torreon and Mexico City, for transmission to the faction leaders.

The action of the United States is a forerunner of a more definite step in the near future in the form of a final demand that the heads of the warring factions settle their differences and restore peace in the southern republic.

The gravity of the situation has been added to as the result of the assault on Allan Mallory, an American, near Puebla and the trampling upon of the American flag by Zapata troops a few days ago. The incident was reported to the state department in a message from Vera Cruz.

An investigation has been ordered. The message was sent to the Brazilian minister at Mexico City, who was asked to forward it to Zapata, believed to be encamped south of the capital. It followed closely the representations to Carranza, Villa and Zapata, asking in the name of humanity, that railroad communication to Mexico City be opened to provision trains.

Secretary Lansing said today late advices indicated there had been fighting along the railroad, but that the reported occupation of Pachuca by Carranza forces, and also of Villa de Guadalupe close to Mexico City indicated it soon would be possible to get provision trains into the capital.

In view of the fact that General Gonzalez, the Carranza commander, announced before evacuating the capital that provision trains would have right of way over everything it is believed that Carranza will direct that to be done, especially in view of the strong representations made by the United States.

A message from Vera Cruz to the state department today said Carranza, forces expected to return to Mexico City and reassume charge of the government there at once.

GOVERNOR WHITMAN PLAINLY SHOWS EFFECTS OF LONG NERVOUS STRAIN.

Albany, N. Y., July 30.—Still showing the effects of the strain under which he has been during the last week, Governor Whitman arrived at the executive chamber about 11 o'clock this morning.

The governor had no comment to make on any phase of the Becker case. The letter which the former police lieutenant wrote the executive just before going to the death chair, had not been received at noon today.

Charles Becker Bravely Meets His Death For Murder of Gambler Rosenthal of Which He Protested His Innocence to the Last

(Associated Press Telegram)
Sing Sing Prison, Ossining, N. Y., July 30.—Charles Becker was put to death in the electric chair here this morning for the killing of Herman Rosenthal, the New York gambler. The former New York police lieutenant retained his composure and protested his innocence to the last. He went to his death with a photograph of his wife pinned on his shirt over his heart. Three shocks were given before the prison physicians pronounced Becker dead at 5:55 o'clock.

Becker led the way to his own execution. The condemned man sat up all night on the edge of his cot, calmly talking to Deputy Warden Charles H. Johnson.

"I have got to face it," said Becker, "and I am going to meet it quietly and without trouble to any one."

The deputy warden left Becker

about an hour before the time set for the execution and when the priest, Father W. E. Cashin, the prison priest, and Father Curry, of New York, came to administer the last rites they found the man who insisted Herman Rosenthal's murder, with his face resting on his hand gazing at the prison floor. The priests remained with him to the end.

It was shortly after 5 o'clock when the first of the witnesses of the execution began to assemble outside the prison walls. Quietly their names were checked off by Deputy Warden Johnson who directed them to take their places at a gateway that led directly to the execution chamber. Then the witnesses were led to the place of execution in a new death house, which had been built adjoining the old execution chamber, where the four gunmen were put to death over a year ago for killing Rosenthal.

When the witnesses were seated, Deputy Warden Johnson nodded to Principal Keeper Fred Dornier and they left the room through a small wooden door that led to the death cells beyond where Becker was praying with his spiritual advisers.

Becker rose to his feet when he saw Johnson, and took a crucifix from the hand of the prison priest. To Father Curry, Becker gave his last message as he took his place at the head of the little file of men that marched to the room of death. Becker's message which he uttered to the priest was:

"I am not guilty by deed, or conspiracy, or in any other way of the death of Herman Rosenthal. I am sacrificed to my friends. Bear this message to the world and my friends. Amen."

The one-time police officer hesitated as he entered the execution room. It seemed to the witnesses as if he was startled that the death chair was so near at hand. He looked quickly at the double row of witnesses, glanced at the floor, swept with his eyes the whitened walls of the room and then suddenly, as if coming to himself, walked briskly over the rubber mat and seated himself in the electric chair. Behind Becker followed the prison priest chanting the prayer of death which was repeated by the condemned man.

"Jesus, Mary, Joseph, have mercy on my soul," nervously spoke Becker as deputy wardens stepped forward and adjusted the electric straps. Hardly a minute elapsed before the electrode was applied to the right leg, a slit having been previously cut in the trouser leg from the knee down. After the electrode had been firmly adjusted, against a shaven spot on the back of the condemned man's head, the state executioner looked at Deputy Warden Johnson who surveyed the figure that was still mumbling the death prayer in the chair. Johnson half turned his head and the executioner jammed the switch.

The first shock lasted a full minute and the executioner said that it was 1,850 volts and ten amperes in strength. It came while Becker was still commending his soul to his Maker.

The two prison physicians stepped forward to examine the collapsed figure that sat supported in the death chair by the thick black leather straps. The stethoscope was applied to the heart and Dr. Charles Farr, the prison physician pressed his finger against the artery in the neck. There was a feeble fluttering of the heart.

The physician stepped back from the rubber mat and again the electric current pulsed through the body. The shock lasted seven seconds and the current was then turned off. After a hasty examination, Dr. Farr asked that a third shock be given. This lasted five seconds. An examination that took several minutes followed. Three physicians among the witnesses then made an examination and Dr. Farr, at 5:55 o'clock quietly announced "I pronounce this man dead."

During the night Becker pencilled on a piece of paper what he captioned "My dying declaration."

It was taken to the warden's office where two copies were typewritten, which Becker signed with his fountain pen in a bold hand. To Deputy Warden Johnson, who had charge of the execution in place of Warden Thomas Mott Osborne, who does not believe in the death penalty, the one-time police lieutenant gave his fountain pen as a gift.

"It is the last thing that I have to give away and I want you to have it. I want you to give this statement to the newspaper men."

After his wife had said farewell, shortly after midnight, Becker maintained a casual conversation with Deputy Warden Johnson, who sat beside him. Some times he smoked cigars, after which he would let his head fall upon his hand and gaze reflectively at the concrete floor for minutes at a time. Dawn found him seated on the edge of his cot carefully pinning a photograph of his wife on his white shirt just over his heart. Then, as if he desired to have her all to himself, Becker put on a thin black alpaca coat, which he tightly buttoned. The photograph was not seen by the witnesses until the prison physician opened his coat as he sat in the death chair.

Becker was put to death by the state executioner whose name is unknown to the public. This man succeeded State Electrician Davis, and he said he would not take the job unless his name was kept secret. He lives in a little town upstate and went about his work briskly.

Becker's executioner said that in his opinion the man had died instantly at the first contact.

An autopsy on the body of Becker was performed, according to law, immediately after the execution. After Becker's body had been removed from the electric chair, Samuel Haynes, a negro murderer, was brought into the execution room and electrocuted. One of Becker's last requests to Warden Osborne was that he be put to death before the negro Haynes.

BECKER FIFTH MAN TO DIE FOR SAME MURDER.

New York, July 30.—Becker was the fifth man to pay the penalty for the murder of Herman Rosenthal. Four gunmen known as Dago Frank, Gyp the Blood, Lefty Louie and Whitey Lewis, were put to death in the electric chair at Sing Sing more than a year ago.

200 INSANE CRIMINALS TRAVELED THROUGH OHIO TO HOSPITAL.

(Associated Press Telegram)
Columbus, July 30.—Two hundred insane criminals were traveling through Ohio today. From special cars they saw the country of northern and western parts of the state, while on their way to the new Lima state hospital, which will be their future home. One hundred went from Massillon state hospital, sixty from Toledo and sixty from Dayton hospitals. All were men.

Extra guards were employed to accompany the patients in preparation for an outbreak, which hospital authorities feared. All cars, which had been hired especially for the purpose, were locked and in most cases windows were bolted shut.

WORK

FOR THOUSANDS OF COAL MINERS WILL BE SECURED BY STATE

Plans Made for Transportation to All Parts of Ohio Where Jobs May be Found.

(Associated Press Telegram)

Columbus, July 30.—State officials today turned their attention to finding work for thousands of coal miners in Southern Ohio who are idle and destitute because of shutting down of the mines. Plans were being worked out for the transportation of miners to all parts of the state where jobs can be found for them by the state free employment bureau and other agencies. The adjutant general's department revived several hundred dollars in additional contributions and dispatched another carload of food to Nelsonville for feeding hungry miners and their families.

The industrial commission instructed the superintendents of free employment agencies in Cleveland, Cincinnati, Toledo, Columbus, Dayton, Akron and Youngstown to bend all energies possible to securing work for miners. Already the Cleveland agency has sent word it has arranged to place a number of men in jobs there. It was announced that transportation would be furnished by the state for those who must leave the coal fields to find work.

It was said to be possible that many miners who can do farm work will be sent into rural communities.

Forest P. Tipton, secretary to Governor Willis, after returning from an inspection tour through the needy mining communities conferred today with Industrial Commissioner Elliot and Mining Commissioner J. M. Roman, who immediately went to work on the employment problem. Fred C. Croxton, chief statistician of the industrial commission, had direct charge of that work.

Simultaneously the commission tackled the task of finding work for several hundred residents of the Hardin county marsh, where growing crops were completely destroyed by the flood two weeks ago. A special agent of the commission was sent to Kenton to inquire into conditions in the marsh, and another representative will go to the coal fields of Southern Ohio probably tomorrow.

WOOL MARKET DULL.

(Associated Press Telegram)

Boston, July 30.—The Commercial Bulletin will say tomorrow:

"The wool market has been less active during the past week but none the less firm. Business has been well diversified and fairly well distributed through the market but the total volume has been only fair. There is no quotable change in either fine or medium wools, compared with a week ago."

Japanese Cabinet Resigns; Result of Bribery Scandals Involving Members of Diet

(Associated Press Telegram)

Tokio, July 30.—The Japanese cabinet, headed by Count Okuma, as premier, has tendered its resignation to Emperor Yoshihito. This action, following the resignation yesterday of Viscount Kanetake Oura, minister of the interior, following an investigation by the ministry of justice into bribery charges resulting from the parliamentary elections last March. Viscount Oura's resignation was sanctioned by the emperor after a report on the situation had been made to him by Count Okuma.

Several members and former members of the Imperial Diet were involved in the bribery investigation. K. Hayashida, who had been chief secretary of the lower house for twenty years, was arrested Wednesday in connection with the charges against Viscount Oura who was alleged to have received a gift of $500.

Premier Okuma, believing he should hold himself responsible for the acts of the members of his cabinet, was the first to tender his resignation. The other ministers immediately decided to follow the example of their chief.

After receiving Count Okuma, the emperor summoned the elder statesmen for a conference. A cabinet change at this time is unpopular with the public because of the war.

Two cases have been mentioned as responsible for the crisis. The first was the statement that 10,000 yen ($500) had been offered Viscount Oura by a candidate for the house as the price for keeping a rival candidate out of the field. The minister of the interior denied having accepted this bribe, but K. Hayashida, chief secretary of the lower house who was arrested Wednesday has been quoted as admitting receiving the money and distributing it for campaign purposes.

The second case involves two representatives charged with accepting bribes to desert the Seiyuwa, or Conservative party, and support the government in its campaign for an increased army.

The elder statesmen will meet tomorrow and it is considered probable that they will advise that Count Okuma be invited to retain the office of premier and reconstruct the cabinet. The name of Lieutenant General Count Terauchi, governor general of Korea, also has been suggested, however, for the post of premier.

WARSAW IN THROES OF SURRENDER

Germans In Overwhelming Numbers at Gates Of Polish Capital

IS NOW MOST IMPORTANT

Hostile Aviators Hovering Over City, and Vast Hosts of Teutons Threaten Railroad From Warsaw to Petrograd—Troops Will Be Rushed to West After City's Fall.

(Associated Press Telegram)

London, July 30.—Warsaw, the third city of Russia and the goal for which the German armies in the East have been striving since October, is at last in the throes of abandonment.

Germans in overwhelming numbers are at the gates of the Polish capital and dispatches from that city itself, and from Petrograd say that further resistance would be unwise.

Discounted not only through France and Great Britain, but in Russia itself, the fall of the city is expected hourly, and the problem now is to move the Russian armies intact, threatened as they are from the south by Austro-Germans and more seriously from the North, where the German forces which have swept through Poland, are aiming at the railway from Warsaw to Petrograd.

This latter menace the British press admits is imminent and the hope in the allied countries now is not for the safety of Warsaw, but for the continued cohesion of the Russian army.

The Warsaw postoffice already has been shifted to some point to the eastward, the populace has been warned to remain calm and presumably for days Russian troops have been stripping the city of everything of value.

German aviators are hovering over the city and according to German advices, plans have been completed for the triumphant entrance of the German emperor accompanied by his consort.

With Warsaw captured, whether or not it proves a conquest of lasting strategic advantage, a great wave of enthusiasm will sweep over Germany, and Austro-Hungary, and it is predicted here that the armies of the central powers will then seek to force a period of trench warfare in the East, meanwhile throwing a great weight of men and guns to the west with the idea of resuming the battering towards Calais and perhaps toward Paris.

In the west just now there has been little worthy of note to break the monotony of mining and bombing from the North Sea to the Swiss frontier. The British public is so little impressed with the events in the East, that David Lloyd George, the minister of munitions, in a speech yesterday apparently thought it necessary to drive home the gravity of the situation in the minds of those inclined to over-optimism, telling them that reverses in Russia would mean increased pressure on the western allies.

CHARLES BECKER

was given out here shortly after her husband's death.

"I shall never rest," she was quoted as saying, "until I have exposed the methods which were used to convict my husband. Whether he was guilty or not, there was no justification for the means employed to convict him. I would rather lose all other members of my family, as dear as they are, than lose Charles; no one can take his place. In all of the ten years of our married life, I never had occasion once to regret that I was his wife."

"Charles was no angel. He made no pretense of being one. He was just an ordinary human being—and perhaps, that is why I loved him so."

Dr. W. O. Stillman of Auburn, who assisted in the autopsy, said that Becker showed unusual resistance to the electric fluid. After the autopsy, Dr. Stillman said:

"I noticed no unusual effects upon Becker's vital organs. The way he resisted the strong current was remarkable, showing him to be an unusually powerful man."

NEAR A COLLAPSE

Mrs. Helen Becker Reached New York After Seeing Governor.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., July 30.—In a dimly lighted room of the Nelson House here last night, Mrs. Charles Becker, whose husband died this morning at Sing Sing for the murder of Herman Rosenthal, pleaded futilely with Governor Whitman to commute her husband's sentence to life imprisonment.

Weeping slightly, but maintaining such control that the governor later remarked admiringly on her composure, she based her appeal solely on her belief in her husband's innocence. There was no offer, either by her or John B. Johnston, one of Becker's attorneys who accompanied her, to expose anything in exchange for the convicted man's life.

"Governor I know Charles is no saint," was her repeated assertion, "but he is not the murderer that he has been branded."

The governor was visibly affected, but he shook his head negatively.

"I cannot," he said, "but I want you to feel free to tell me everything. If there is anything that you know that you have not told that you think would help your husband, or that I should know, you may tell it to me now with the fullest assurance that it will be regarded as absolutely confidential."

"There is nothing to tell," Mrs. Becker replied. "I only know he is innocent."

The conference between Mrs. Becker and the governor lasted about 15 minutes.

Mr. Johnston and Major John Stanley Moore, the governor's military secretary, also were present.

Prior to seeing Mrs. Becker, the governor conferred for more than an hour with Mr. Johnston. The attorney appealed for a reprieve in order that the case might be taken to the court of appeals and also asked the governor the permit former Justice Edgar M. Cullen and Charles Andrews to pass on the appeal for a commutation or reprieve as specially appointed commissioners.

The executive declined both requests. When asked to grant a reprieve, that new evidence might be submitted, the governor said there was none.

The conference here was arranged only after the telephone wires between Albany and Camp Whitman, where the governor had gone to review the New York state militia, had been kept busy for several hours in an attempt to locate him. He left Albany about 10 o'clock in the morning and Mrs. Becker and Mr. Johnston arrived here shortly after 11:30 in the hope of seeing the executive. They remained at an Albany hotel until about 4 o'clock in the afternoon when the governor was located by his secretary, William A. Orr, and agreed to meet them here.

Nearly all day Mrs. Becker maintained silence, seldom speaking save to Mr. Johnston. Wearing a black taffeta suit and a black hat trimmed with white wings, she sat quietly in the corner of the hotel or in the trains gazing out of the windows into space. Few recognized her and she recognized none.

A crowd as large as that often seen in front of the hotel on regatta days had gathered about the Nelson House, when the governor's car rolled up at about 5:30. Ten minutes later a car bearing Mrs. Becker and Mr. Johnston arrived.

Mrs. Becker, unsupported, stepped briskly through the lobby to the elevator and ascended to the second floor, where the governor was waiting in a suite of three rooms.

For more than an hour, while Mr. Johnston pleaded his points of law with the governor, Mrs. Becker sat alone in a darkened room. Meanwhile the halls outside filled with newspaper men and photographers and several scores of the curious, included in the latter was one man who was quite certain that if he could whisper one word into the governor's ear, Becker's life would be saved. He was not admitted to the governor's presence.

Two women who were about to have tea walked into the door of the room Mrs. Becker occupied and asked her if she would like a cup of tea.

"No, no," she murmured under her lowered veil, "please leave me alone. That is all I ask."

When the governor had completed his conference with Mr. Johnston, the doors of the room were opened and the governor walked over to Mrs. Becker. She rose immediately and began to talk to him.

As between Mrs. Becker and the governor, she appeared to have her nerves under better control than he. His face was flushed, his collar wilted and he stood wearily clasping his hands together when he saw several newspaper men soon after he had left her.

"I suppose," he said very slowly,

Solemn Declaration of Innocence Made by Becker On Eternity's Brink

(Associated Press Telegrams)

In a statement issued just before he was led to his doom, Charles Becker wrote:

"Gentlemen:—I stand before you in my full senses, knowing that no power on earth can save me from the grave that is to receive my body. In the face of that, in the teeth of those who condemned me and in the presence of my God and your God, I proclaim my absolute innocence of the foul crime for which I must die. You are now about to witness my destruction by the state, which is organized to protect the lives of the innocent. May Almighty God pardon everyone who has contributed in any degree to my untimely death. And, now, on the brink of my grave, I declare to the world that I am proud to have been the husband of the purest, noblest woman that ever lived—Helen Becker. This acknowledgment is the only legacy I can leave her. I bid you all goodbye. Father I am ready to go. Amen."

MRS. BECKER

Mrs. Charles Becker, wife of the man who was electrocuted at Sing Sing, posed for this photograph the day W. Bourke Cockran argued for a new trial for her husband. The cheerful expression she bears is due to the hope that a new trial would be granted.

"that you want to ask me if I have seen Mrs. Becker. I have, and I have told her that I cannot intervene."

Turning then to Mr. Johnston, the governor said: "You had better make a statement now."

Mr. Johnston then explained the legal points in the case which he had raised and the governor told on what ground he had refused to consider them just cause for his intervening with the execution.

As the governor finished talking, he moved over to a chair and sat down on the arm limply.

"It's been a trying experience for me," he said, "I thought I had gone through everything possible in the district attorney's office, but I know now that such was not the case."

"Are you in favor of the pardoning power being placed with a commission?" he was asked.

"No," he replied quickly, straightening up. "I think the pardoning power should lie with the governor."

Mr. Johnston bade the governor goodbye and passed into the darkened room in which Mrs. Becker still sat. A moment later, the hall being cleared, she slipped out a side stairway and entered a waiting motor car to go to Sing Sing for a last farewell with her husband. Within 10 minutes the governor was on his way to Albany.

The governor denied vigorously last night that he ever told Charles B. Pitt, Becker's so-called press agent, that he intended to pardon Becker if he became governor.

"The statement," he said, "is too absurd to consider."

Mr. Johnston declared tonight, in the presence of the governor, that he never knew of Becker's offering to plead guilty to second degree murder. The governor said positively that any report attributed to him to the effect that Becker had made such an offer was unwarranted, but he added that he would not deny the truth of such a statement.

Returning from her last visit to the death house at Sing Sing prison, where she had taken her farewell of her husband, Mrs. Charles Becker arrived at the Becker home in the Bronx at 2:40 a. m. today. She was accompanied by one of Becker's brothers, who half carried her into the house. Mrs. Becker showed evidences of the deep distress she was undergoing. No efforts were made to question her about her visit to Sing Sing. She was met by her sister, Mrs. Mary Lynch.

Mrs. Becker, according to her brother-in-law, John Lynch, was bearing up well today after the strain she underwent yesterday and last night. Mrs. Becker is resting at her home today and is not expected to see any one except members of her family.

An undertaker was despatched today to Ossining to get the body of Charles Becker. The funeral, it was announced, will take place Monday.

A solemn high requiem mass will be said at the Church of St. Nicholas, by Rev. Nicholas Murray.

Interment will be at Woodlawn cemetery.

BECKER'S LAST DAY

Spent Writing Statement Scoring Governor Whitman.

Ossining, N. Y., July 30.—Becker's last hope died when he was told early in the evening that his wife had failed to move Governor Whitman to commute his sentence to life imprisonment. This, Mrs. Becker asked of the governor at a conference which she had with him at Poughkeepsie. Failing in her mission, she started for Ossining to break the news to her husband, but it had already reached him.

Mrs. Becker arrived at Sing Sing prison by automobile from Poughkeepsie at 11:30 last night. She went at once to her husband's cell to tell him of the unsuccessful result of her conference with Governor Whitman.

She was accompanied by Lawyer Johnston.

Both declined to make any statement and hurried at once in to the prison.

Mrs. Becker said farewell to her husband at midnight. She did not leave the prison, however, until later. John Becker, the condemned man's brother, and John Lynch, Mrs. Becker's brother, accompanied her. She showed no effects of the mental strain to which she had been subjected.

Deputy Warden Johnson announced after Mrs. Becker's departure that Becker had prepared a statement to be issued after the execution. He said the statement was brief but would not intimate what it contained.

Becker, it was said, had not expected clemency. Almost at the moment the news was received, the prisoner gave out a letter that he had written to Governor Whitman in which he attacked the executive for having as he indicated, given to the newspapers statements which cast a "foul impression on my character," and for which he demanded a retraction.

In this letter Becker again reiterated his innocence of the crime for which he was being executed.

"To these charges and to all others," he answered, "the letter read, 'by repeating solemnly on the brink of the world to which you are sending me before my time, what was my constant answer while in the world: I am innocent as you of having murdered Herman Rosenthal, or of having counseled, procured or aided in his murder, or having any knowledge of that dreadful crime.'"

The alleged statements which Becker referred to as having been credited to the governor were that he had offered to plead guilty of murder in the second degree; that, quoting from Becker's letter, he "had offered to give testimony against several persons (whose names are not disclosed) of having shared with me in collecting money from law-breakers"; that he had sent counsel to two men arrested for complicity in the Rosenthal murder, and that "with a cruelty almost inconceivable, it is stated that my first wife died under circumstances warranting suspicion that I had caused her death."

"Mark well, sir, these words of mine," the letter concluded, "when your power passes, then the truth of Rosenthal's murder will become known. But not while your nominees remain district attorneys and can hold the club over these persons."

"With the aid of judges who were misled into misconceiving the testimony offered in my trial and into mistaking it both to the jury and on appeal, you have proved yourself able to destroy my life. But, believe me, I will surrender it without rancor. Not all the judges in this state, nor in this country, nor the governor of this state nor the district attorney, nor all of them combined, can destroy permanently the character of an innocent man."

Becker had spent nearly the whole day in his cell preparing the letter which was sent to Governor Whitman. The statements which elicited it appeared in copies of the morning papers which were sent to his cell shortly after he arose at 6 a. m. to spend what were to be the last 24 hours of his life.

Father James Curry of New York who has been Becker's spiritual adviser ever since his first conviction, was one of the doomed man's visitors during the day. He left him a prayer book and Testament, marked with consoling passages which he promised to read.

Late in the afternoon his two brothers, Jackson and John Becker, and his widowed sister, Mrs. Katherine Geigher, visited him, and remained with him in his cell until long after his evening meal which, though light, Becker ate with apparently his normal appetite. Mrs. Geigher was weeping when she came out.

Dr. Charles W. Farr, the prison physician, and Dr. Henry Mereness, his assistant, made a customary physical examination of the prisoner at noon. They reported that his pulse was normal.

"Becker seems to have a strong grip on himself," said Dr. Farr. "When we entered his cell he half-smiled and said, 'Well, I suppose you have come to say goodbye.'"

Last night Becker seemed coldly resigned to his fate. The prison officials reported that while he awaited the arrival of his wife somewhat impatiently, his composure was remarkable.

"He was seated in his cell smoking a cigar," said Leon C. Weinstein, commissioner of prisons, who saw the prisoner in the deathhouse at about 10 o'clock.

"He was as cold as ice. When I remarked that he seemed to be taking it easy, he said: 'What else can I do. I've got to face it, haven't I?'"

As the night wore on Mrs. Becker had not arrived and no word had been received at the prison as to her whereabouts. It was reported here that she had left Poughkeepsie at 7:30 p. m. with a 40-mile trip ahead of her. Becker meanwhile was growing nervous in his cell.

"I wonder what's keeping my wife," he repeated, according to information that came from the death house.

Father Cashin and Father Curry sought to allay the turmoil of his wait. At times Becker was talkative, and then he would lapse into silence.

Mrs. Becker finally reached the prison at 11:30 and visited her husband in his cell.

HISTORY OF CASE

From Rosenthal Murder Until This Morning's Final Chapter.

Herman Rosenthal, the gambler for whose murder Charles Becker was sentenced to die in the electric chair, was shot to death by armed gunmen in the early morning of July 16, 1912, in front of the Hotel Metropole on Forty-third street a few steps from Broadway.

The murder was the swift culmination of sensational charges made a few days before by Rosenthal against Becker in which Rosenthal asserted that Becker, then head of the Strong Arm Squad of detectives, freely sold police protection and had accumulated thousands of dollars of graft money.

Rosenthal went further than that. He swore that Becker was his silent partner in a gambling enterprise that failed and that Becker, angered by losses where he had expected large profits, raided the Rosenthal establishment and drove Rosenthal out of business by stationing uniformed policemen on his premises day and night.

These charges were published and District Attorney Whitman began an investigation of them. He summoned Rosenthal to the Criminal Courts building and listened to his story. An appointment was made with Rosenthal for the next day. Before the time came, Rosenthal was murdered.

When the assassins had done their work, they ran across the street, jumped into a grey automobile which was waiting at the curb and whirled away uptown. A bystander caught the license number of the car.

District Attorney Whitman, notified by the police of the murder, reached the police station where Rosenthal's body lay, before dawn. He aroused his detectives from their sleep and spread a dragnet over the city for the murderer. It was found before night his driver, Louis Shapiro, and Louis Libbey, part owner, were arrested and Mr. Whitman asserted openly in an emphatic statement that the police had nabbed the murderer.

New York City, already interested in the charges of police corruption, responded to the news of the murder as if to a call to arms. Becker, who had been the chief target of Rosenthal's accusations, was openly suspected. He was relieved of his command of the Strong Arm Squad and transferred to the Bronx. Jack Rose, his graft collector, walked into the Criminal court building the day after the murder and surrendered to the District Attorney declaring he had nothing to fear. Harry Vallon and Bridget Webber, gamblers and friends of Rose and Becker, were arrested as witnesses. The grand jury began its investigation.

Rose lay in prison twelve days without word from Becker, and, believing his chief had deserted him, confessed Vallon and Webber corroborated his story. He told of his long association with Becker, of police corruption which existed at Rosenthal had charged, of thousands collected by Becker for police protection, and, finally, of his commission by Becker to arrange to have Rosenthal killed by gunmen—a commission he executed.

That night, July 29, 1912, District Attorney Whitman summoned the Grand Jury by telephone and telegraph, laid 2½ evidence before it and within two hours obtained the indictment of Becker on a charge of murder.

Four East Side gangsters were indicted as the actual murderers. Rose had testified that these men were assigned by "Big Jack" Zelig, a gang leader who had been arrested by Becker's men, to a trumped-up charge, to do the murder. They were to receive $1,000 and Zelig was to be released. Zelig's orders had been issued from the Tombs to the gunmen.

These gunmen—known in the streets of the East Side as "Gyp the Blood," Horowitz, "Lefty Louis" Rosenberg, "Dago Frank" Crofied and "Whitey" Lewis—were rounded up one by one. The last two arrested, "Gyp the Blood" and "Lefty Louis," were not found till September hiding in a Brooklyn flat. With them

State Journal Tourists May Stop Over Night In Newark On the Next Trip

So greatly pleased were the members of the Ohio State Journal automobile carnival, with the reception tendered the party here Thursday afternoon, that there was talk among the members of the party of making Newark an over-night stopping point next year. This fact alone should more than compensate the members of the Newark Merchants Association and other Newark business men who combined in their efforts to give the tourists a hearty welcome.

The tourists arrived in the city on scheduled time, being escorted from Utica to Newark by a party representing the Newark Merchants Association. There were twelve cars in the Newark party, about forty local business men taking part in the reception of the Columbus people.

Leaving the Warden hotel shortly after 1 o'clock, the Newark party rolled along at a lively rate of speed in order to reach Utica in time to greet the cars as they arrived from Mt. Vernon. The departure from Newark was well timed and just as the Newark machines pulled into the south end of Utica's main thoroughfare, the first car of the Columbus party came into the village from the north.

Drivers of machines in both caravans greeted each other with smiles of good fellowship and plenty of noise from electric horns. The Newark machines continued their way through the village until the entire Columbus party had pulled up along the west side of the street. The Newark cars turned and came back through the village, taking their places on the east side of the street.

The Newark reception committee, consisting of Messrs. G. E. Besancney, D. C. Metz and W. C. Kuster, backed by most of the other members of the party, greeted the general committee in charge of the Journal party. Then arrangements were made for the Newark escort.

Headed by the pilot car in which R. W. Reed of the Journal staff was seated, the Newark contingent started for Newark. C. R. Clough, official starter with the party, timed the drivers, allowing a half minute between the departure of each car.

At Fourth and Channel streets the cars were again stopped and allowed to "bunch" for the trip down Hudson avenue. It had the appearance of the grand entry of a circus opening. There was plenty of noise to accompany the entry. As far as could be ascertained none of the batteries operating the electric horns had suffered any by the trip and the sirens were kept in operation until the last car pulled up and parked opposite the Warden hotel.

Coming down Hudson avenue, a pair of black and white dogs became panic stricken and dodged between the cars, terror showing in their eyes. After getting across the street in safety both disappeared around the house with their tails closely curled between their legs.

When all cars were parked, occupants disembarked and made their way to the Warden hotel, where the reception committee and the refreshment committee, the latter consisting of W. C. Kuster, C. E. McDaniel and A. P. Rowe, gave the tourists a more substantial welcome.

In the private dining room of the Warden, a buffet luncheon was spread. Great stacks of appetizing sandwiches awaited the attack of the hungry automobilists.

Waiters worked rapidly filling tumblers with ice cold buttermilk and cold lemonade. If there were any dyspeptics in the Columbus party or any one sticking to a vegetarian diet, he did not appear in the crowd. The buttermilk, lemonade and sandwiches vanished rapidly but at that there was an ample supply.

The scheduled hour's stop in Newark was opportunely seized by the staff photographer who made several pictures of the party. The Newark reception party was photographed and then the combined Newark and Columbus party was posed in front of the hotel.

R. W. Reed engineered the posing and he dragged the ever modest Chief of Police Sheridan into the foreground and a call was sent out for Mayor Bigbee who was content to remain in the background. Mr. Reed insisted that the city officials and the members of the reception and refreshment committees step out in front. He wanted a souvenir of the royal welcome tendered the party here.

Then an effort was made to get a picture of the efficient crew of the pilot car. This resulted in some delay as George L. Chennell, who had been the life of the party, had disappeared, having gone to hunt up some acquaintances in town.

Mr. Chennell was finally located and the pilot car snapped. Immediately thereafter the Columbus party left Newark on the last leg of its journey back home. A short stop was made at the Pharis Tire and Rubber company's plant, where the members of the party were escorted through the factory. They were surprised to find a plant of that magnitude in Newark manufacturing automobile tires of high quality. Columbus men are interested in the factory as well as Newark men and the party had a double interest in the industry.

Leaving the factory the party continued west in Main street to Sixteenth, crossing over to Granville, where the macadam and concrete roads were reached and the trip continued through Granville, Reynoldsburg and into Columbus.

Many Columbus people, well known in Newark were with the party. Ray Pharis of the Pharis Tire & Rubber company was with the party. In the car with Mr. Pharis was Allan G. Oakley, Associated Press operator, now stationed in the State Journal office, but formerly located in Newark, handling the press report at the Newark end of the Advocate's leased wire.

Members of the party found the last day of their trip more difficult than either of the two previous days. Some bad roads were struck between Marion, Mt. Gilead and Fredericktown.

The factory whistles shrieked and an engine bell clanged as the line of automobiles left Mt. Gilead, bound for Chesterville up the road, a slough of despond that should be crossed in a rowboat after a hard rain. A few miles out the party passed a farm yard that had done itself honor by exhibiting the first page of the State Journal, nailed upon a board and festooned with bunting. A half mile farther on a spry old gentleman hailed each car and presented every passenger with a bunch of old-fashioned posies. He shall be known by his flowers.

In Fredericktown there were gayly-flaunting American flags and a reception committee passed out the cigars.

Mt. Vernon was the next haven of rest. The Log Cabin Cafe, a quaint eating place, had a line chicken dinner waiting, which was speedily dispatched, by Charles Justus, noted for a zoological appetite, and by Harry J. Westerman, whose artistic temperament behaved like a starved bear. The departure from Mt. Vernon was signalized by the killing of a fox terrier which ran under the machine driven by H. P. Discher. The dog belonged to George Bodkins.

The advent into Utica was celebrated by the blast of auto horns, notifying the travelers that a reception committee was waiting to do the honors. These men, Mayor C. W. Smoots, A. K. Alsford, W. J. Wilson and E. A. Ottman, piloted the company into Utica and continued the journey to Newark.

RAIN AGAIN POSTPONES BIG M. & M. STAKE

(ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM)

Detroit, Mich. July 30.—Rain falling heavily early today indicated a probable further delay for the $10,000 M. & M. stake which already had been postponed twice this week because of unfavorable weather and track conditions. In addition to the stake, the program arranged for today's Grand Circuit racing contained the Wayne hotel sweepstakes, for three year old trotters, $800 added; 2:18 pace and 2:13 pace.

Because of the slippery condition of the track at the state fair grounds the M. & M. $10,000 stake was again postponed yesterday. Owners of the horses entered in the stake refused to take chances in the mud. The other races on the Grand Circuit program were run off, however, and they furnished good sport.

Geers won his first race of the week with Guy Nella in the 2:10 trot. The veteran waited an instant too long to make his drive in the first heat and Lulu Lumine beat Guy Nella by a nose. In each of the next three heats Guy Nella lay back about fourth until the stretch was reached and then went to the front. Lizzie Brown held on well in the final heat and Geers took the lead only in the last 100 yards.

The 2:11 pace went to five heats. Hal Connor, after breaking twice, won the first heat in impressive fashion. Thereafter his unsteadiness kept him in trouble all the time and the best he could do was a division of second and third money with Dustless McKinney. Clara Walker finished second in two heats and won the other three. Under the point system, Dustless McKinney with no firsts, shared in the money ahead Rex Heart winner of the third heat.

Tommy Murphy had a good day, winning the unfinished 2:22 pace in straight heats with Jean and driving Peter Farren to a straight heat victory in the 2:15 pace. The latter event was a struggle all the way between Murphy's horse and Budd Elliott, piloted by Geers, but Peter Farren was a little better at the end of each mile.

Pupils' Promotion.

"Few schools now rely entirely upon examinations as a test for promotion," declares W. S. Deffenbaugh, chief of the division of school administration of the United States bureau of education, in his annual review of school conditions in the smaller cities.

"In some schools examinations are made to count one-half, while in others they count only one-fourth. It is now recognized that examinations are not true tests of the pupil's ability to do the next grade's work and that a pupil should not be promoted on what he knows, but on what he can do. Of 756 superintendents in the smaller cities reporting, 669 say that they are now depending on examinations much less than formerly."

How pupils shall be classified so that they may advance through the grades without loss of time is a question that is thoughtfully presenting itself to thoughtful superintendents, according to Mr. Deffenbaugh, and some cities are undertaking special experiments in this field.

In Carthage, N. Y., all those children who can not read are started on their educational journey in much the same way. Gradually they are re-grouped into three divisions: The first, composed of the most mature and most capable, completes a certain amount of work in one year; the next group is given one and one-half years in which to accomplish the same amount, and the third two years. Before the close of the first year each of the three groups is likely to be divided again into the higher and lower. Therefore each pupil who enters in the fall with no knowledge of the books before him has the possibility of being in any one of six groups before the close of the first year. There is a special teacher in the lower grades who devotes her entire time to misfits—those pupils who for some reason or other can not do all of their work to the best advantage in any one of the regular groups. This teacher coaxes backward pupils and helps the brilliant ones to jump to the next division.

ASTRONOMICAL EVENTS.

Moving star: Mrs. Morning stars: Saturn, Jupiter, Mercury, Venus. Planet Jupiter in conjunction with the moon.

South America a revolution generally is associated more with bloodshed, but in Haiti it has always been an excuse for wholesale butchery.

Haiti has produced a series of tragic moving pictures within the last couple of days. Reel 1: (Some months ago) Revolution starts to put out President Guillaume and put in Rosalvo Bobo. Reel 2: Gov. Oscar, Guillaume supporter, massacres 160 political prisoners, among them former President Zamor. Reel 3: A mob fills Oscar with rifle bullets. Reel 4: Another mob takes President Guillaume out of the French legation and shoots him to death. Reel 5: United States cruiser Washington arrives at Port-au-Prince with 100 marines and 700 bluejackets.

Little Haiti presents a white man's burden of considerable weight. If there were any hope of the people eventually effecting self-extermination, after the example of the Kilkenny felines, our government might heed those who counsel a policy of "hands off," but the Haitians are as tenacious as they are devilish. However, in the interests of humanity, the United States must try to restore ordinary civilized conditions in the black republic, no matter how many funerals this will involve. Haiti unfortunately is right on Uncle Sam's beat.

South American Trade.

(Pittsburg Dispatch.)

Nothing could seem more reasonable than the general impression that the manufacturing industries of the United States, so large a proportion of which are located on or near the Atlantic seaboard, should have captured long ago a conspicuously big share of the South American trade, instead of seeing most of it cross the ocean to Europe. What's the answer? It is this: Our manufacturers have been so busy developing their home trade and meeting the demands of the home market, that they have not had time to attend to the organization of business relations with South America. Have had all they could do right at their own doorsteps.

But now that conditions have changed and the necessity of a foreign market has become emphasized, and the war in Europe has upset the affairs of the world, the practicability of effecting profitable intercourse with our far southern neighbors and the desirability of it as well, is so apparent and so pressing that no essential steps to accomplish such purpose are likely to be omitted. This is an official announcement from the foreign trade bureau of the Philadelphia Commercial Museum, which speaks for many manufacturers in this state and country.

Change in another important relation of international trade, with respect to the southern countries, is of vital import. Heretofore South America has done business with European nations because it was allowed to draw liberally on their accumulated capital. This capital is fast being destroyed while that of the United States is just as rapidly increased. The result may be readily foreseen to a very considerable degree. Our business men will figure prominently in South American financing. We can afford to do in the future, and no doubt will do, what Europe has done in this important direction in the past.

Strikes.

The international war and the international labor dispute run side by side on parallel tracks. In England, side yesterday, it was the Welsh coal miners. In Germany, the workmen in the Krupp factories. In America it is at Bridgeport and Bayonne, with other places impending. At bottom the dispute is everywhere the same. The strikes are the backwash of the war. Conscription and enlistment thin the ranks of industry and fatten the ranks of war. Decrease in the supply of skilled men brings increase of the demand for their labor. Unemployment, which quenched strikes in the opening months of war, disappears. Industry begins to steam full speed ahead. Abnormal trade conditions bring abnormal profits to the owners of the industries. Then the men, finding their labor indispensable, demand a larger share of the increased profits on their product. The strikes begin.—Boston Globe.

Hundred Years Ago and Now.

William Dean Howells, comparing conditions in the United States in 1815 with those of 1915, on the whole is optimistic. For instance, judged quantitatively, he believes that telegraph is able now than it was then, since there are more men of talent if not so many of genius. Public men then undoubtedly wrote a better style, so he thinks, but he adds: "Perhaps a good style is not now so much needed, general education having gone so far with us that we are all able to dispense with good style in them." This is a rather Philistine talk for a man of letters of Mr. Howells' eminence. Good style always is needed, and no diffusion of literacy justifies sloppy, careless expression of thought. The dean of the American school of letters should not condone "dispensing with style." Even realism, which Mr. Howells has championed so long as to see it flourish and droop and now be challenged anew by romanticism and by symbolism, has its perfect, comparative and superlative forms of expression. There is a contrast in style between the stories of Mr. Howells and those of Theodore Dreiser wholly to the advantage of the veteran.—Christian Science Monitor.

He'll see the widows worked like steers, in round of toil unending, the grandmothers, in their dotard years, heathenish burdens bending "To this," he'll sigh, "through crimes and sins, and seas of blood I've risen! Luke McLuke Says:

When a man hates another man he goes around and tells everybody but the man he hates.

A rich man is often a poor husband. The woman who spends all of her time trying to shine in society always gets mad when her nose gets the habit.

The fellow who remains in the hay, and pounds his ear until noon usually, spends the rest of the day whining that he can't get up in the world.

A man doesn't mind paying his beer bill, but it is different when his water bill comes in.

Start to praise a man and your audience will yawn. Start knocking a man and your audience will sit up and pay attention.

When a man can't make a living any other way he can always become a reformer and find plenty of grouches to finance a society for the prevention of something.

The reason why a woman never succeeds when she marries a man in reforming him is because she forgets to take a course of lessons in the art of charming snakes.

The old fashioned youth who believed that women were all built alike now has a son who knows a corn fed shape from an excelsiored one.

When he begins to notice that she talks too much, and she begins to notice that his breath smells of tobacco, the honeymoon goes out and hunts for a man who knows how to use a pulmotor.

This is a queer world. In one end of town a woman who has denied herself enough to eat so that the children might have milk for supper will pick up a piece of newspaper and see a big headline over the news that a woman in the other end of town has just paid $10,000 for a Pekingese poodle.

Your credit never gets so poor that you can't borrow all the trouble you are looking for.

REWARD PAID FOR CAPTURE OF STIFFEN

The reward for the capture of David Stiffen, $175, was paid to the men responsible for his apprehension at Chicago Junction last Saturday afternoon. Prosecuting Attorney J. W. Horner and Commissioners Ben B. Jones, Jos. H. Orr and Frank R. Dunn made the awards after hearing the testimony of the men who captured Stiffen. It was as follows: Frank Horschler $76.35; J. W. Beeks, $63.85; Joseph T. Glecker, $26.85; Jas. T. Sheridan traveling expenses to return Stiffen, $4.95; Officer A. Eastman, Chicago Junction, auto hire, $3.

The testimony of the three men responsible for Stiffen's capture developed that Brakeman Horschler saw the former on a U. & O. freight train at Utica, O. When the freight arrived at Chicago Junction Horschler, Conductor Beeks and Brakeman Glecker saw Stiffen coming through the yards and the three men started down after him. The latter was carrying a heavy cane and Horschler walked up to him and caught him by the arm. Stiffen resisted and endeavored to use the cane when Beeks grabbed him by the arm. The two men held him and requested Glecker to call an officer. The latter was two car lengths behind when Stiffen was taken by the two men and told the prosecutor and commissioners that he identified Stiffen as he knew him when a boy and for that reason did not go up and take hold of him. After he succeeded in getting an officer the prisoner was taken to the Chicago Junction prison and held for Chief Sheridan.

Officer A. Eastman of Chicago Junction sent in a claim for the full reward of $175. In his letter he stated that the reward offered by the Licking county officials stated that it would be paid for the arrest of David Stiffen and he was the person who arrested him, therefore he thought he was entitled to the reward. The officials thought different and paid it to the men who captured Stiffen, as they had agreed to do. Eastman, however, was allowed $3 for auto livery. He will also in all probability be subpoenaed on the case when it comes up for trial.

[Associated Press Telegram] Washington, July 30.—Secretary Lansing announced today that a committee of public safety, organized in Port Au Prince, Haiti, has taken charge of the capital and is conducting the de facto government. After a conference with American naval officers and the American chargé d'affaires, the committee decided upon disarmament of the city which began yesterday.

The gunboat Nashville today was ordered from San Domingo to Cape Haitien to reinforce the gunboat Eagle.

The navy department is expecting from Admiral Caperton a detailed report of conditions in the Haitian capital, which are now said to conflict.

A brief report from Admiral Caperton said he had about 400 men on shore patrolling the town in command of Captain E. L. Beach, who was having no difficulty maintaining order.

DENIES THEFT OF WATCH; SAYS SAME WAS A GIFT

John Williams, 22, arrested on the affidavit of Oma Linton, who charges him with the theft of a lady's gold watch worth $18, waived examination when arraigned before Judge Friday morning in police court. He did not deny having the watch but declared that Miss Linton gave it to him. Williams' prompt assertion that he would waive examination aroused the curiosity of the court. Mayor Bigbee inquired if Williams had been arrested before and he admitted that this was not his first arraignment. He was held to the probate court under bond in the sum of $50.

In Milady's Boudoir

By Gwen Sears

Do you dissipate, Madam, and Madame? You do not stay out until late hours doing the tango? If not, you are indeed a charming exception in these days of swiftly moving events. You do not puff delightedly on a cigarette in the privacy of your boudoir? You do not drink a cocktail before dinner?

If you answer no then this article is not for you. It is written especially for the women and girls who do these three mentioned things, and it is not a sermon on morals, but simply health and beauty.

Cigarette smoking robs your lungs of their natural oxygen, dulls the lustre of your eyes and gives the fingers, which should be as white as a yellowish tinge which no self respecting woman would care to own. Do you now believe it is worth it?

Tango dancing is quite all right, so far as the dancing goes, but late hours rob you of your beauty as surely as night follows the day. If you must dance, and mind you, it is not injurious to your health or beauty, try to moderate your hours and get your eight hours each night of sound beauty restoring sleep, with your windows thrown wide open.

Drinking alcoholic liquors saps your health and beauty and makes you an old woman before your time. The cocktail habit is fattening and also coarsening. A woman's face can never be lovely if it sags in coarse, hard lines and ridges.

Beware of the three beauty and youth destroyers: cocktails, cigarettes and late hours.

Your Boys and Girls

As I look about among my acquaintances I can see that in some households the absence of the mother, even for a day, would result in a great deal of irregularity in the conduct of the children, to say the least. And in other homes almost any adult in charge would find the children going on about their games and other affairs as though nothing unusual had occurred.

The difference between these two types of homes is all in the viewpoint of the parents. In one case the parents rule with a high hand and the feeling of restraint is constantly with the children in their presence. Whoever is left in authority when the parents are away, is sure to find a strong tendency among the children to break out. For the children then feel that they will not be dealt with as severely for any breach of discipline, and they take advantage of the removal of the usual restraint.

"Over The Wire"

[By Dorothy Clarke]

Never again will I go shopping with anyone. I always end up by spending entirely too much money. . . . we were in Andre's and I saw the cutest coat. . . . just for afternoon wear over thin white dresses. . . . But it's too adorable. . . . it's flowered cretonne with a broad black patent leather belt. . . . full skirts reaching well below the hips. . . . the collar is starched white linen and so are the sauntered cuffs. . . . Or course there was a hat that matched it. . . . Yes, I bought that, too. . . .

It's a white straw. . . . perfectly plain stiff brim with a cretonne crown to match the coat and trimmed with black patent leather streamers. . . . I am going to wear it at the tennis matches and I do hope you'll approve. . . . Patricia bought some awfully nice things. . . . But we'll see you this afternoon. . . . Good-bye. . . .

WHAT IS IT?

POST NO BILLS

PING!

Answer to Thursday's puzzle—Legacy.

China's Great River.

The Yangtze klang, or Yangtze river, is as long as the Mississippi and is far more important as a highway of commerce. From the great port of Shanghai as far inland as the important city of Hankow, a distance of 600 miles, the Yangtze is navigable for ocean going vessels. For the greater portion of this distance the river is very broad, and for some of the journey a passenger in a boat in midstream would be unable to see either shore distinctly. From Hankow to Ichang, 280 miles further, the Yangtze is navigable for small river steamers, and from Ichang up to Pingshansen, nearly 1,000 miles, it is in great part navigable. Some of the passenger steamers plying between Shanghai and Hankow are exceedingly modern and comfortable. Thousands of sailing craft are seen on the river daily on a trip between these two points and numbers of huge rafts which require each a whole village to bring them and their contents to the distant market. The Yangtze has many important tributaries. One of these, the Hanbo, which flows into the Yangtze at Hankow, is itself navigable for 600 miles.

The President's Title.

In spite of our traditions and our pretenses Americans dearly love a title. It's a fair guess that a larger part of the mail that goes to the White House is addressed to "His Excellency" or "His Eminence" or "His Honor." As a matter of fact his title is The President of the United States. That is title so great that the fathers decided that to add to it would be to detract from it. The fathers were wise. Taking their cue from the federal practice the constitution makers nor the statute makers of New York ever made the chief executive of this commonwealth other title than the governor of New York. Every governor of the state has been content with that. Address him so in letter or in speech and you are right. Decorate him with an "excellency" or an "honor" and you are wrong. The governor of Massachusetts is His Excellency by warrant of the constitution of 1780, but he is the only excellency we have in America.—New York Sun.

Buffoonery in "Hamlet."

The buffoonery once tolerated in provincial theaters is illustrated in an anecdote set forth in the memoirs of Barry Sullivan. Wright, who was the first gravedigger, prepared himself to take the house by storm by having incensed his person within a dozen or more waistcoats of all sorts of shapes and patterns. When about to commence the operation of digging the grave for the fair Ophelia Wright began to unwind by taking off waistcoat after waistcoat, which caused uproarious laughter among the audience. But as fast as he relieved himself of one waistcoat Paul Bedford, the second gravedigger, incensed himself in the castoff vests, which increased the salvos of laughter, for "Wright was getting thinner Paul grew fatter and fatter. Wright, seeing himself outdone, kept on the remainder of the waistcoats and went on with his part quite crestfallen.

AUTO DRIVER PLEADS GUILTY TO DRUNKENNESS; SIX MONTHS SENTENCE

Pleading guilty to a charge of driving his automobile while intoxicated, John Myers, arrested Wednesday evening by local police, was fined $25 and costs and sentenced to six months in the county jail.

Mayor Bigbee in assessing the fine and passing sentence establishes a precedent for future handling of cases of this character which should be a warning to those who have habitually violated this law.

The severity of the sentence is an indication that the court realized the peril to pedestrians and occupants of vehicles other than the one in which the intoxicated driver is riding.

FAST STEPPERS SEEN YESTERDAY AT THE MATINEE

The Class A race for pacers at the matinee meeting Thursday afternoon furnished some real excitement for the large crowd which assembled for the weekly program. A field of six horses scored in the first heat and a pretty race resulted. There was no leading on the part of the winners of the individual heats either as the time registered by the judges indicated. A record of 1:01 for the half mile was made in the last heat when Nancy O'Connor came in under the wire the winner of the heat and race.

Though Barney Clay was first in the second heat he was drawn after the third. In the fourth heat only three horses who had scored firsts, came to the post.

The Class A trot furnished the only other contest. Admiral Dewey, winner of the first heat, was unable to go ahead of Dana the only other horse in the race, and the last two heats.

The official starter of the matinee club, Mr. L. D. Corbett, was out of the city Thursday, having gone to Detroit to witness the M. & M. stake race of the grand circuit, which was prevented on account of rain. Jess Cray acted in Mr. Corbett's stead. On next Thursday afternoon a number of splendid prizes will be awarded.

His Best.

A small boy, who had been allowed to run much in the streets, had so improved his opportunities that before he was five years old it was commonly said by the neighbors that he swore like a little pirate. Parental discipline did not avail to break him of the habit. One day when he was to visit his grandmother in the next street he was employed by his mother to behave himself properly, and especially not to indulge in bad language. He promised to try to remember. On his return at night the anxious mother asked if he had been a good boy. He replied emphatically that he had, clinching the statement by adding:

"I twice called grandma an old devil every little day."—New York Post.

Languages.

The French, Spanish, Italian and Portuguese languages (known as the "romance" languages) are offshoots of the old Latin and are to a considerable extent founded upon it, while the German and English tongues grew up quite apart from the Latin. That is why the Scandinavian, Dutch, German and English languages (which, like the peoples themselves, are closely related) are so scant in Latin words and derivations.—New York American.

Readers' View Point

Editor Advocate:
On July 27, we made a tour of the Marietta trucking section in Washington County. The climatic conditions early were cool and dry, unfavorable to an early growth of most plants, but cabbage grew well and we saw acres and acres of cabbage, thousands and thousands of fine heads, weighing from eight to ten lbs., that for want of a market, were rotting on the land; the wholesale price hardly paying for harvesting and crating.
The market for tomatoes has been better but a disease is rampant among tomatoes and cucumbers. As I stood looking at a large field that at a little distance looked like a lot of stakes stuck in the ground, the tomato vines being practically dead from bottom to top. I tried to pronounce the technical name of the disease and this word came to me "Furiosis" and I thought that would express what the disease really is.
The "furiosis" wilt or blight apparently begins about the time the first tomatoes begin to ripen. First the lower leaves are the wilting and dying of the lower leaves gradually extending up the plant. This season killing the entire plant in about three weeks.
At the experimental truck patch they have been spraying with bordeaux mixture and delayed the disease until the bulk of the crop has been harvested. Apparently the disease is not starting so soon on some plots as others and it would seem that methods of fertilizing may have some effect in delaying the disease than others.
Three lines of work seem to offer some hope; selection of disease resistant plants, methods of fertilization and spraying. Last year it was thought that rotation of crops might be a source of relief but on the experiment farm at Fleming on land where tomatoes were never known to be grown until this year the wilt is starting all right.
We have seasons that are favorable to the growth of certain crops and to the spread of certain diseases and it would seem that seasons affect the appetite or tastes of people. This year we have a great crop of cabbage but nobody seems to care for it. I do not know but what it would be well to make some investigations in controlling the appetite of people so that in season of great abundance of some crop we might be able to cause a great consumption of that crop.
The rainfall has not been as great in southeastern Ohio as in central and northern Ohio and the corn in the Ohio river bottoms is very, very fine. They are growing a great many cow peas in this section, primarily for the improvement of the land and secondarily for a hay crop. We think the soy bean much the better of the two plants and have out quite an acreage on the Washington County Experiment Farm and the beans are doing fine.

With the French Wounded
The Woman's Sacrifice.

Paris, July 30.—8:30 p. m. Away from the battlefield one sees war stripped of its glamor. We see the heroic work of nurses who are on duty day and night. There is devotion, self-sacrifice, suffering, patriotism—qualities which only a great war and its terrible consequences can inspire to the highest development. The women everywhere are helping and everywhere one sees self-sacrifice and devotion to country.
The women of the United States do not know how fortunate they are. Here there are plenty of women who suffer in silence, whose strength is out of proportion to their ambition. Their hands are tied by some chronic disease common to womankind; that weak back, accompanied by pain here or there, extreme nervousness, sleeplessness, maybe fainting spells or spasms, are all signals of distress for women. She may be growing from girlhood into womanhood, passing from womanhood to motherhood, and later suffering from the change which leaves so many wrecks of women. At any or all of these periods of a woman's life she should take a tonic and nerve, prescribed by a physician of vast experience in the diseases of women. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has successfully treated more cases the past fifty years than any other known remedy. When you feel dull, headachy, backache, dizzy, or perhaps hot flashes, there is nothing you can accomplish, nothing you can enjoy. You can find permanent relief in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It is sold by medicine dealers, or trial box by mail from Dr. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., on receipt of 50-cents, or one dollar for large box.—Adv.

Hair Under Arms Removed with El-Rado

The latest styles in evening dresses and sheer blouses require the absolute removal of all hair from the arm-pits. And there is only one really satisfactory way to accomplish this. Shaving makes the growth return thicker and coarser than before. The first growth of hair on a man's face is mere fuzz. Yet witness the coarseness of any man's beard after a short period of shaving.
Pasties and powders which have to be scraped off and which irritate the skin also promote future growth. So-called "permanent" treatments are painful and dangerous, as any physician will tell you.
Thousands of women have found that El-Rado, the sanitary, colorless liquid, affords the only really satisfactory method. El-Rado acts instantly, no rubbing or scraping. Merely saturate the hair thoroughly and leave for a moment or two and the hair vanishes. It will not return for a long time. When it finally does reappear, it will be finer and softer than originally, so that another application of El-Rado will remove it once more for a still longer period. On account of its highly antiseptic properties, the same ingredients are now being used by physicians for hair removing. El-Rado is not an experiment, it has been in use for years for the removal of all hair blemishes.
The better druggists and dealers in toilet goods sell and recommend El-Rado. Two sizes, 50c and $1.00. Money refunded without question or red tape, if you're not more than pleased. Get it today so you can apply, it tonight.
Send a postal for booklet, letters of users and full information; or enclose stamps or coin and we will gladly fill your order by return mail in plain package. Pilgrim Mfg. Co., 66 East 28th St., New York City.

REPORTS THAT POPE DESIRES AN ARMISTICE

AND IS PREPARING A GREAT ACTION THROUGH EPISCOPATES OF BELLIGERENTS

German Archbishop of Cologne Orders Churches to Specially Pray For Peace With Victory.

(Associated Press Telegram)
Berlin, July 30.—By wireless to Sayville.—A dispatch from Madrid to the Overseas News Agency says the Spanish newspaper ABC reports from Rome that the pope is preparing a great action through the episcopate of the belligerent countries with the object of securing an armistice. The archbishop of Pisa is quoted as confirming the story and adding that Pope Benedict himself is aware of the grave difficulties which he has to overcome.

Cardinal von Hartmann, the archbishop of Cologne, has published an order addressed to all the churches of his diocese directing them to hold special services and prayers next Sunday, thanking the Almighty for the powerful blessing accorded German arms in their many victorious battles in the East and West, and praying for His assistance in helping to bring about an early and lasting victorious peace.

The services will be brought to a close with a special prayer prescribed by Pope Benedict.

A dispatch from Athens to the Overseas News Agency says:

"The American cruiser North Carolina shortly returned to Greece from an extended trip in the war zone. The officers of the ship told an acquaintance that the real losses of the entente allies in the Dardanelles surpassed everything heretofore reported. The Australian and Irish detachments were almost annihilated."

"The attempts to storm the rocky steep heights on the Asiatic side of the straits were termed by these officers as simple insanity."

Turkish machine guns directed by German officers mowed down the storming ranks. The Turks led by the German fought with great fury.

"Wounded English officers at Alexandria spoke with the highest admiration of their antagonists. Australian regiment of 1,000 returned from a charge sixty-seven strong. These were wounded, their comrades were dead."

A dispatch from St. Petersburg to the Overseas News Agency says that the Wartburg Diet closed yesterday after passing the budget which was voted for by all the Socialists except three members of a new faction.

Prior to taking of the vote the Socialists declared that "interior and political differences must disappear so long as the fatherland is threatened by overwhelmingly superior forces."

Before Sept. 1 the sewer ditching machine will finish work on Pearl College, Summit, Spellman, Granger, Sunrise and Cedar streets, and the remaining 7500 feet of sewer pipe will be laid in these streets. The contractors for the disposal plant also are pushing their work and expect to finish about the same time. It never is an agreeable business to have one's town "dug up" so thoroughly, but Granville really has suffered the minimum of annoyance, and inconvenience. The foreign workmen have been very little in evidence, the contractors have been considerate, and the consulting engineer has been on the job every minute looking out for Granville interests.

BURGLAR HIDES UNDER BED WITH LOADED RIFLE

Faithful Dog Aids W. B. Hillman in Capturing "John Jones" Who Ransacked Farmer's Home.

"Call off your dog, I'll come out," was the frantic appeal of a foreigner taken into custody Thursday afternoon at the home of W. B. Hillman of Flatown when the man was caught in the Hillman home. Hillman's faithful shepherd dog not overly fond of allowing hoboes around the place, and chewing viciously at the rear breadth of the burglar's trousers.

Mr. Hillman demanded that the burglar present his hands before he was allowed to come out and the burglar, anxious to save his person from lacerations, promptly agreed.

An investigation revealed that the man had ransacked the house on two floors while the Hillman family was absent. Nothing of value was missed.

Mr. Hillman took him into custody and brought him to the city in an automobile where he was turned over to the police. He told the officers that his name was John Jones but admitted that he was a native of Austria.

He is believed to be the same man who entered the home of Frank Kreager, two miles east of Linnville a week ago Tuesday night, when a pocketbook containing $43 was stolen.

This charge was contained in an affidavit filed by Kreager who named John Rusnak as the thief. This charge was not presented against "Jones" but the information and the affidavit will be presented to the grand jury a few weeks hence.

When Jones was dragged from under the bed at the Hillman home, Mr. Hillman found a loaded rifle under the bed.

EASTLAND

saw the Eastland overturn and a few minutes before had refused to let the boat leave the dock until she was evenly balanced. He shouted to the captain that the vessel was listing badly.

William H. Hull, vice president and general manager of the St. Joseph-Chicago Steamship company, owners of the Eastland, with his counsel, Charles E. Kremer, was in the federal building this morning. Neither would make any statement. The inquiry being made by Secretary of Commerce Redfield was resumed with the examination of several witnesses during the morning session.

When the inquiry which is being conducted by Secretary Redfield into the causes of the Eastland disaster was resumed today, Robert Reid, United States inspector of steamboats with headquarters at Grand Haven, Mich., was recalled to the stand. Mr. Reid was one of the six men ordered held by the coroner's jury to the state grand jury, and is the father-in-law of J. M. Erickson, chief engineer of the Eastland, who also was held to the grand jury.

The witness was examined by A. L. Thurman, solicitor for the department of commerce.
"I first saw the Eastland in the Chicago river in June 1906," said Inspector Reid. "I was then an assistant hull inspector. The boat was then allowed to carry 3,000 passengers. I think that certificate was in effect only during the season of 1906."

"I made my first inspection of the Eastland at Grand Haven, Mich., in June, 1914, just after her return from Cleveland, where she had been for several years. At that time I knew no members of the owning company except George T. Arnold, the president. He was a personal acquaintance. The boat was taken to Benton Harbor, Mich., and Inspector C. C. Eckliff and I inspected her there June 16, 1914. At that time I found the general condition of the steamer and her life apparatus good. I gave her a capacity of 2,045."

"In determining her capacity, I considered the life saving apparatus and did not take into consideration the deck space, though it was the general practice to do so. I knew she had deck space for 3,000 persons."

Inspector Reid said that the general rule in determining the deck space as a basis for estimating the passenger capacity of a boat was "to divide the number of square feet of deck space by either six, seven, eight or nine."

"When Eckliff and I fixed the capacity of the boat," said Reid, "George T. Arnold, president of the St. Joseph-Chicago Steamship company; William H. Hull, vice president and Walter C. Steele, secretary were aboard."

The witness said that his son-in-law, J. M. Erickson had applied for the position of chief engineer of the Eastland at the request of his wife and that Mr. Hull had written a letter to the Grand Haven inspection board asking about Erickson's qualifications. Erickson was later appointed chief engineer.

Inspector Reid said that at one time he had angered Mr. Hull by refusing to grant a certificate of inspection to the steamer Eugene C. Hart.

"I have had my character attacked more than once," said the witness, "because I refused to certify boats."

Inspector Reid declared that no boat owner had ever tried to influence him in making inspections of vessels. He told of amending the Eastland's capacity certificate July 2, 1915, allowing her to carry 2,500 passengers.

The new permit, he said, was based on the addition of four life rafts to her life saving equipment. The witness admitted that when he issued the new permit he was only advised of the new life rafts by an affidavit from Captain Pederson, but he said "four days later I saw the rafts myself on the vessel."

Coroner Hoffman today requested Mayor Thompson to employ two city divers and a naval expert to check the work of two divers who are said to be coming here from Washington to explore the wreck of the Eastland. Reports have reached the coroner that Secretary Redfield has ordered his aids to take charge of the Eastland and keep off every one not connected with the federal government until such time as the federal officials shall have completed their investigations.

United States Marshal Bradley appeared at the Eastland shortly before noon today and announced that he had been ordered by Federal Judge Landis to seize the boat. He displayed a writ of attachment. He said that he would not interfere with the work of raising the boat.
Walter C. Steele, secretary-treasurer of the St. Joseph and Chicago Steamship company, owners of the Eastland, who was arrested yesterday on a charge of criminal carelessness in connection with the disaster, was released on $10,000 bonds today and the case against him continued to August 10.

were found their young wives who, to divert suspicion, had died their light hair black.

To give standing to the testimony of Becker's three accomplices who had turned informers—Rose, Webber and Vallon—a corroborating witness who was not implicated was needed. Sam Schepps, a dapper little gambler who had fled the city, was the man who could do this. He was found at Hot Springs, Ark., brought back to New York and the People's case against Charles Becker was complete. It went to trial October 7, 1912. A verdict of guilty of first degree murder was returned at midnight

October 24, 1912, when the jury had deliberated seven hours and fifty-seven minutes. Becker was sentenced six days later to die in the electric chair during the week of December 9, 1912. Within less than a month, the four gunmen were placed on trial as the actual slayers, found guilty and sent to the death house.

More than a year later, on February 24, 1914, the Court of Appeals decided that Becker should have a new trial. The gunmen's conviction was upheld and they paid the penalty with their lives on April 14, 1914. One of the number, "Dago Frank," confessed the guilt of his three associates but maintained his own innocence. His confession, made on the eve of the execution, became known the day they were put to death.

Becker was brought back to the Tombs. His second trial was begun May 6, 1914, and ended May 22, with a verdict of guilty. He was sentenced to die during the week of July 6, 1914. An appeal was filed, but the conviction was upheld by the higher court in a decision handed down May 25, last, and the date of the execution was set for the week beginning July 12.

Shortly after the court of appeals denied Becker a third trial, W. Barker Cockran became Becker's chief counsel. He appeared before United States Supreme Court Justice Hughes and argued for a writ of error, which was denied.

During the week previous to that in which Becker was sentenced to die, Governor Whitman granted the condemned man a reprieve of two weeks, as he had learned, it was stated, new motions were to be made in Becker's behalf.

On July 20, a 15,000 word statement by Becker was forwarded to the governor. The statement was said to contain new facts and made public mention for the first time of the name of the late Congressman Timothy D. Sullivan in connection with the case. The governor declined to commute Becker's sentence after reading the statement.

Becker's attorneys thereupon appealed to Supreme Court Justice Philbin for a third trial and on July 23 the Justice signed an order for district attorney Perkins to show cause why a new trial should not be granted. The order was returnable before Supreme Court Justice Ford on July 26. The Justice reserved decision and devoted nearly all of his time for the next two days to going over papers in the case. Shortly after 10 o'clock on the night of July 28 Justice Ford announced he had denied the application and Becker's only hope remained in possible executive clemency by Governor Whitman.

Throughout Becker's troubles his wife remained loyal to him and was his constant adviser. She labored apparently without truce in his behalf, assisting his counsel in every way possible. She appeared to be crushed when the Court of Appeals upheld his second conviction, but soon turned her energies toward eleven-hour work to save him. It was largely at her urging that he joined in the plan to ask Governor Whitman, his prosecutor, for clemency.

There was one other woman who, if reports are true, followed Becker's career through the courts as closely as his own wife did. This was Herman Rosenthal's widow. Soon after Becker's second conviction she disappeared. Not long ago she was found, broken in health and spirit, and living with an old-time friend.

"I am living for only one thing," she was quoted as saying, "to see the day that Becker pays the penalty."

REPRIEVE

For Four Condemned Mexicans Possible by Court's Ruling.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM]
Phoenix, Ariz., July 30.—By vacating his own order, denying a writ of habeas corpus in the case of four Mexicans condemned to hang today in the state prison at Florence, Judge McAllister, of the superior court opened the way for an appeal to the state supreme court which will serve as a stay of execution at least until September, when that tribunal reconvenes.

Action was taken by the court after it was shown that his earlier order denying the writ of habeas corpus yesterday prevented an appeal that would act as a stay of execution.

The Mexicans were charged with the murder of four white persons at Ray, Arizona. A reprieve was granted last May only a short time before the date set for the hangings on the request of W. J. Bryan, at that time secretary of state.

An appeal previously had been taken in the case of the fifth condemned Mexican.

TWO EXECUTED

White Man and Negro Pay Death Penalty in Kentucky.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM]
Eddyville, Ky., July 30.—For the third time in the history of Kentucky, a double electrocution took place this morning at 3:30 o'clock at the Eddyville penitentiary.

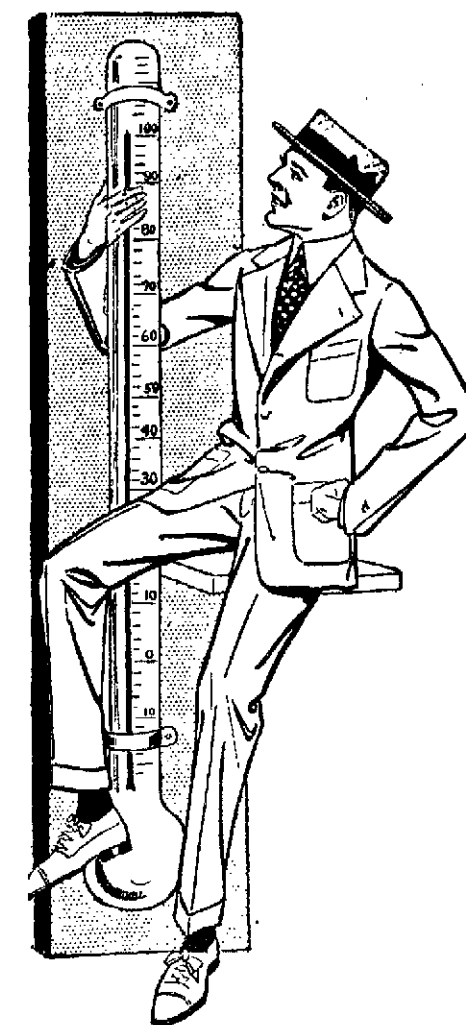

The first to be executed was Turner Graham, Jr., 24, a white man convicted for the killing of R. J. McMurry, sheriff of Hardin county. The second was Will Lane, 25, a negro, convicted at Pineville, Ky., on a charge of killing his wife. Lane was the first negro to be executed in Kentucky since the adoption of electrocution as a means of inflicting the death penalty. Both men passed the night calmly and walked unassisted to the death chair.
